How did the Fund perform in the last year?

Class Y Shares underperformed benchmark, the Russell 1000 Growth Index, for the 12-month period ending September 30, 2025.

Fund performance for the period was attributable to unfavorable stock selection in the consumer discretionary and industrials sectors, as well as a large underweight to the information technology sector and overweight to consumer staples. This was partially offset by positive stock selection in the information technology and communication services sectors. The Fund's tilt towards stocks with lower betas than that of its benchmark detracted from performance, and its tilt away from the most expensive stocks in the benchmark also had a negative impact.

Among the Fund's sub-advisers, Fred Alger Management, LLC significantly outperformed the benchmark due to its bias towards high-beta, high-growth stocks with positive momentum, as well as favorable stock selection in the information technology, financials, utilities, and communication services sectors. The SEI quantitative investment management team's factor-based momentum strategy outperformed due to its overweight to stocks with high momentum and favorable stock selection in the information technology, industrials, and healthcare sectors. Mackenzie Investments Corporation slightly lagged the benchmark due to weak stock selection in the information technology, industrials, and utilities sectors; this was partially offset by favorable stock selection in the materials and financials sectors. PineStone Asset Management Inc. underperformed due to its bias towards low-beta, defensive stocks, which lagged the overall market during the reporting period, along with unfavorable stock selection in the industrials and financials sectors.
