How did the Fund perform in the last year?

Class F Shares of the Fund modestly underperformed its benchmark, the Bloomberg New York Intermediate Municipal Index (USD), for the 12-month period ending August 31, 2024.

U.S. fixed-income securities experienced volatility early in the reporting period, with bond yields initially rising before markets eventually coalesced around the prospect of significant Federal Reserve (Fed) monetary policy easing in 2024 as inflation data began to improve towards the Fed's 2% target. As a result, November and December 2023 saw two of the strongest monthly performances in the municipal market's history. Optimism began to wane in the first quarter of 2024 due to stronger-than-expected inflation readings, which delayed the market's projection for interest-rate cuts before pricing in the likelihood of its initial cut at the September 2024 Fed meeting.

Within the investment-grade municipal sector, A and BBB rated issues outperformed AA and AAA rated securities during the reporting period, reflecting investor preference for lower-quality, while high yield was the strongest-performing segment across the entire municipal market. The municipal curve was inverted (short-term yields exceeded long-term yields) throughout much of 2023 and 2024, before ending the reporting period with the 2-to-10-year U.S. Treasury curve virtually flat.

While New York faces challenges, including an above-average debt burden, large other post-employment benefits (OPEB) liability and population growth issues, the state is buffered by its $19.5 billion principal reserves and benefits from a diverse economy and well-funded pension system. The state's debt is rated AA+/AA+/AA1 from credit-rating agencies S&P, Fitch and Moody's, respectively, reflecting a strong credit profile.

Overall security selection bolstered the Fund's relative performance for the reporting period, with contributions from airports, education, transportation, and special tax issues. Additionally, the Fund's duration position and a barbelled yield-curve position (investing in short- and long-term bonds with no exposure to the intermediate segment of the curve) contributed to performance, while sector allocation was a moderate detractor due to the Fund's allocation to pre-refunded bonds.
