The table and graph presented above do not reflect the deduction of taxes a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or the redemption of Fund Shares. Past performance is not indicative of future performance.

* As of September 30, 2024, pursuant to the new regulatory requirements, this index has been added to represent the broad-based securities market index.

How did the Fund perform in the last year?

Class F Shares underperformed its benchmark, the Russell 1000 Index, for the 12-month period ending September 30, 2024.

The Fund recorded a positive absolute return for the reporting period, but underperformed the benchmark due to its tilt toward value stocks and away from the mega-cap growth stocks that led the market upturn. The Fund's underweight exposure to the information technology sector also weighed on performance.

Among the Fund's sub-advisors, Brandywine Global Investment Management, LLC lagged the benchmark due to its value orientation and stock selection within the energy and consumer discretionary sectors. LSV Asset Management lagged the benchmark due to its value orientation, an overweight allocation to the energy sector, an underweight to the information technology sector, and security selection within the industrials sector. Fred Alger Management, LLC outperformed the benchmark due to its growth orientation, a large weight in the information technology sector, and stock selection within the information technology sector. Mar Vista Investment Partners, LLC's underperformance was attributable to its lower-beta (a measure of an investment's volatility relative to a benchmark) tilt, underweights to the mega-cap growth stocks that led the market upturn over the period, and stock selection within the information technology sector. SEI's Quantitative Investment Management (QIM) team's factor-based momentum strategy outperformed due to security selection within the industrials and information technology sectors. The QIM Team's factor-based quality strategy lagged the benchmark due to security selection within the information technology sector. Copeland Capital Management LLC's (Copeland) performance lagged during the portion of the reporting period that it was a Fund sub-advisor because of its lower-beta tilt and stock selection within the consumer discretionary and financials sectors.

Regarding the use of derivatives during the reporting period, the Fund employed equity index futures in an effort to provide stock-like performance to the liquidity reserve account, which contained cash available for fund withdrawals. This contributed positively to the Fund's absolute return for the period.
